

EDITOR'S NOTE

Members' contributions to the Newsletter are always welcome, and we are grateful for those received. In addition to reports, research, and library and resources news, we will publish letters to the editor and reviews. The deadline for the next Newsletter is October 31st, 1993.

Now that most Australian tertiary institutions and some other organisations have access to the Internet through AARNet, it is time to expand our coverage of online services relating to East Asian information. There is one mailing list in particular, the Eastlib list, which readers should consider joining. Details on how to join this list are supplied in the newsletter.

Online groups have formed their own subculture, and certain conventions have developed for ethical behaviour and for quoting sources taken from the network. This aspect is worth a longer section in the next newsletter.
